

This summer, financial education comes to the National Citizens Service!

As financial education becomes part of the new national curriculum, it now takes its place within the National Citizens Service, focusing on sustainable independent living.

MyBnk are bringing money knowledge power to thousands of 15 to 16 year olds, arming them with personal finance skills like budgeting, banking and responsible borrowing and discovering what government does with your cash.

Youths will then put these skills into practice, running their own social action project in their local communities.

From September 2014 money lessons will become a compulsory part of the national secondary curriculum in Citizenship and Maths.

Come and see how our experts are building young people's resilience and bringing money to life with projects, games and quizzes at events taking place across the country at football clubs, universities and youth groups.

Delivering award-winning workshops from Money Twist, we will be:

- Demystifying tax.
- Exploring youth employment rights.
- Examining career choices.
- Discovering the history of money.
- Prioritising needs v wants.
- Learning how and why to save.

The scheme runs for six weeks during July and August 2013 in supported by the Cabinet Office, Reed in Partnership and the Football League Trust.

The NCS is a flagship Government initiative which aims to promote a more cohesive, responsible and engaged society by gaining leadership, teamwork and communication skills.

Lily Lapenna MyBnk CEO says:

"We believe being financial responsible is a big part of being a responsible citizen. Society bears the burden of poor money decisions and indebtedness, by bringing these skills into the NCS we can ensure more young people can connect the macro and macro and lead financial sustainable lives."
